DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.
2. Claims 11-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. The applicant limitations recited in claim 11-13 are not clear, and thus indefinite.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 11-13 cannot be examined on the merit because the limitations recited in claims 11-13 are indefinite, and thus the claimed subject matter is not clear to the examiner. Appropriate correction is required.
4. Claims 1-6, and 14-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Ferstenberg et al (Ferst hereinafter, US PAT: 5,873,071).

Re claim 1. Ferst discloses a method for transaction management and processing in a trading environment comprising: providing an Order Management System for receiving Orders; processing Orders, by way of said Order Management System (see abstract, also see col.39 lines 25-67 through col.40 lines 1-67), whereby processing Orders further comprising the steps of; providing Orders from an Order Management System to an Exchange (see col.41 lines 17-50, also see col.42 lines 5-30); and, providing transaction information for Orders from an Exchange to an Order Management System (see col.41 lines 17-50, also see col.42 lines 5-30); and whereby said Order Management System comprises components selected from the group comprising; at least two cooperating services, in-memory cache (see col.41, lines 10-15, also see col.51, lines 5-10), and client API (see col.39 lines 25-65).

Re claim 2. First further discloses a method wherein the step of providing an Order Management System for receiving Orders further comprises providing said Order Management System in a distributed computing environment (see abstract).

Re claim 3. First further discloses a method wherein the step of providing an Order Management System for receiving Orders further comprises providing said Order Management System in a multi-threaded implementation (see col.51 lines 37-40).

Re claim 4. First further discloses a method wherein said components are, at least in part, written in C++ (see col.51 lines 27-30).

Re claim 5. First further discloses a method for order processing comprising; accepting an Order through a client API; providing, from said client API, said Order to a Session Manager; providing a session for said Order; transmitting said Order from said Session Manager to an Entry Service; and, attempting to Validate said Order through a Validation Service (see col.41 lines 40-67).

Re claim 6. First discloses a method further comprising the step of failing to Validate said Orders (i.e., removing problematic data, see col.44 lines 15-20).

Re claims 14, 15, and 17. Ferst further discloses an Order Management System comprising at least two cooperating services, an in-memory cache (see col.41, lines 10-15, also see col.51, lines 5-10), and a client API (see col.39 lines 25-65), implemented on a distributed computing platform (see abstract).

Re claim 16. Ferst further discloses an Order Management Network comprised of at least one Order Management System (see fig.5).

Re claim 18. Ferst further discloses a toolkit, wherein said cooperating services components further comprise; a Session Manager (i.e., supervisor subsystem, see col.45 lines 13-35); an Entry Service (see col.42 lines 5-10); a Validation Service (see col.41 lines 11-15); a Transaction Service (i.e., orders see col.42 lines 5-10); a Collection Service (i.e., reporting service see col.44 line 65 through col.45 line 20, also see col.42 lines 5-10); and a Notification Service (i.e., broadcast message see col.42 lines 5-10).

Re claim 19. Ferst further discloses a toolkit wherein said cooperating service components are written, at least in part, in C++ (see col.51 lines 27-30).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claims 7 - 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ferst in view of Guttermann et al (Gutt hereinafter, US PAT: 5,297,031).

Re claims 7 and 10. Ferst discloses a method further comprising the steps of: validating said Order/object (see col.41 lines 11-15); notifying an Entry Service through said Validation Service (see col.42 lines 5-10);; transmitting said Order from said Entry Service to a Transaction Service (i.e., orders see col.42 lines 5-10). Ferst does not explicitly disclose creating an Object for said Order. However, Gutt makes this disclosure.). Thus, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to combine Ferst with Gutt to implement user-definability of the OMS system.

Re claim 8. Ferst does not explicitly disclose a method wherein the step of creating an Object for said Order comprises creating an Order Object. However, Gutt makes this disclosure (see col.10 lines 15-50). Thus, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to combine Ferst with Gutt to implement user-definability of the OMS system.

Re claim 9. Ferst does not explicitly disclose a method wherein the step of creating an Object for said Order comprises creating an Execution Object. Gutt makes this disclosure (i.e., a fill pane object see col.10 lines 15-50). Thus, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to combine Ferst with Gutt to implement user-definability of the OMS system.
